"The task force will say how this was a great day in the war on corruption," said Barbara Ann Golder, Safavian's lawyer, referring to the Justice Department task force investigating the Abramoff scandal. "I find they made a mountain out of

volz and others in 2002.

The Justice Department made a case that Safavian provided Abramoff advice and some inside information about two government properties including the Old Post Office in downtown Washington.

to link this information and determine they were actual Social Security numbers in the first place," he said.

No other employee information was on the computer, he said, and there was no
